

Hello, my name is Reginald T. Jenkins and I'm running for City of Detroit General City Pension Board Trustee. I have been a City of Detroit employee for more than twenty-two (22) years. I'm currently employed as Second Deputy Fire Commissioner in the Detroit Fire Department; however, for the majority of my career, I have served in the City's Human Resources Department, both as a Labor Relations Administrator and Human Resources Consultant. During my tenure in Labor Relations, I negotiated pension terms over various contract periods, with most City unions, which includes being a part of the team that negotiated the sick-time roll-in provisions of the Legacy Pension Plan.

My education background includes a B.S. in Business Management from Alabama A&M University; M.S. in Human Resources Administration from Central Michigan University; and a M.A. in Industrial (Labor) Relations from Wayne State University, where I currently serve as an Adjunct Professor of Labor Studies and active member of the American Federation of Teachers.

I have the experience and knowledge to be your representative on the pension board. I'm running to protect our future, help make sound business decisions and be a voice for employees at the table.
